HARRY HAD TWO GOOD JOBS

Helping With a Pension and Running a Grocery Bill. Didn't Save a Vagrant.

The charge was vagrancy—that blanket accusation that the police wrap around all the phlegmatic members of the Amalgamated Association of Toile Haters.

"Who! Me?" exclaimed the accused Harry White, thirty years old, in the South side municipal court. Judge Halstead looked all around the court room for a substitute, but in vain.

"Yes, I guess you're it, Harry," he said. "This court holds, and always has held, that when a man has no visible means of support, i. e., no occupation, he's—"

"But I got a job, your honor," Harry declared.

"What—what?" the judge gasped. "Sure," said the culprit. "My father is an old soldier and I help him live on his pension."

"Such filial devotion commands our respect," the court declared, gravely. "Have you any other—er—line of work?"

"Yes," Harry replied. "I also run a grocery bill."

"Keeps the grocer on the run, too, I fancy," the court commented. "Fifteen dollars, Harry. And costs. The city needs such energetic workers."—Kansas City Star.

COLD AN ENEMY TO LIFE

"Fine, Bracing Weather" Is All Right if One Has Warm Place to Escape To.

"Cold is, and always has been, the greatest enemy to life." So we are told by a medical writer in the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette. The Dietetic writer runs against the common impression, but isn't he about right? We talk of "bracing cold," but that is because we have to brace ourselves against it in order to resist and overcome it, just as we have to brace ourselves against a thief or a ruffian who assaults us. Because the resistance to the ruffian makes the heart beat faster and calls out all the force in us, that is no proof that the ruffian is a boon.

As a matter of fact, the nearer one approaches the poles, which are the home of cold, the less life we find; and the further we advance into the tropics, where genial warmth is queen, the more abundantly life swarms. It is warmth that makes life and cold that kills it.

So we may congratulate the reader on the "fine bracing weather"—provided he has a nice warm place where he can go and get away from it.

TIMELY LIGHT.

A French minister tells of an incident during a voyage to India: "One dark evening I sat in my cabin feeling thoroughly unwell, as the sea was rising fast and I was but a poor sailor. Suddenly the cry of 'man overboard!' made me spring to my feet. I heard a trampling overhead, but resolved not to go on deck lest I should interfere with the crew in their efforts to save the poor man."

"What can I do?" I asked myself, and, instantly unhooking my lamp, I held it near the top of my cabin and close to my bull's eye window, that it's light might shine on the sea, and as near the ship as possible. In a half minute's time I heard the joyful cry: 'It's all right; he's safe,' upon which I put my lamp in its place. The next day, however, I was told that my little lamp was the sole means of saving the man's life. It was only by the timely light which shone upon him that the knotted rope could be thrown so as to reach him."—Christian Herald.

HANDICAPPED.

"Do you try to be your son's chum?" "Yes, I try to be, but with indifferent success. He regards me with a good deal of contempt because I can't always understand the meaning of the slang he uses."

IN DOUBT.

Patience—You know, she's trying to procure a separation suit.

Patrice—For gracious sakes, be more specific! What is she trying to get, anyway, a separation from her husband or a divided skirt?

NONCOMMITTAL.

"What are the good resolutions you are going to keep?"

"I am not going to give them away."

HE IS REAL CONSERVATIVE

Pennsylvania Farmer Saw No Reason Why Things Should Be Changed.

In Pennsylvania, not many years ago, dwelt the descendants of an ancient German settler. The farm had descended for generations from father to son, and the original customs had been faithfully adhered to.

But a youth was born to the family who had imbibed some of the modern racial ideas and was likely to come into conflict with his father's stolid conservatism.

One day Johannes was told to saddle the horse and take the grist to the mill. It had been the practice from time immemorial to place the grist in one end of the bag and a large stone in the other end to balance it, and to throw it across the horse's back.

But Johannes on the present occasion managed to get the grist divided between the two ends of the bag, so that there was no need of the stone.

"Oh, daddy, come and see! There ain't no use for the stone."

The old gentleman calmly surveyed the device, and with a severely reproachful aspect remarked to his exulting son:

"Johannes, your fader, your grandfather and your great-grandfather all went to de mill wid de stone in one end of de bag and de grist in de odder. Und you, a mere poy, sets yourself up to know more as they do. Yust put dat stone in de bag and never lets me hear no more of such foolishness as dat."—Life.

HIS LUCID EXPLANATION.

The Rev. John Cavanaugh, president of the University of Notre Dame, told several stories at the Indiana society banquet at Chicago during his address on "The Indiana Home."

"Speaking of being born, reminds me of a good old Hoosier who told me how he missed being born in Indiana," said Father Cavanaugh. "His mother had a favorite sister who had married a man from Illinois, and she had been doing time in that state for a good many years. This man went on to tell how his mother got lonesome to see her sister, and went for a good, long visit with her. During the course of that visit my old friend was born. 'And that's how it came,' he said, 'that I wasn't born a Hoosier. I was born in the absence of my mother.'"

COBRA LOOSE ABOARD SHIP.

A poisonous cobra, one of the most deadly reptiles of India, killed one member of the crew, reduced the rest to a state of abject terror during the voyage from Calcutta, and still is loose aboard the German steamer Katterturm, which reached Boston several days ago.

The reptile, one of 124 consigned to a New York animal dealer, is eight feet long, and its bite is swift and certain death.

DOESN'T HAVE TO.

"I guess poor old Tom will be married this year."

"Tim? Why, he hasn't nerve enough to ask a woman to marry him."

"That's all right. This will be leap year."

GOOD TEAM WORK.

"Have you ever noticed the way Mrs. Pepper lays down the law to Mr. Pepper?"

"Sure. And have you ever noticed the way Mr. Pepper carries it out?"
